

I'm interested in how to use different fonts, sizes, and styles to emphasize a hierarchy of importance. I also found it particularly interesting how these designs integrate the text into the image

In Backtrack, I applied this hierarchy through prominent page headings and smaller supporting text on report cards

I'm interested in exploring how color contrast can be used to emphasize certain parts of my app. Also, using color to convey different messages such as changing color of text as a way of user feedback

In Backtrack, I used green for primary actions and red with explanatory text for errors, making actions and feedback easier to distinguish
